Use as a base in a disaster

What is a local disaster response station?

A local disaster response station is:

- 1 A place for neighborhood associations* to use as a temporary base after disasters, where they can gather safety check results
- 2 A "disaster response base" with equipment to use for fire fighting and rescue work
- 3 A distribution point for relief supplies

There are local disaster response stations in 61 places within Minoh City in places like parks. They are installed in every Elementary School District and are used by 144 (approx. 40% of the total) neighborhood associations.

We can come and explain in detail the best ways to use them. We highly recommend any neighborhood association to consider using the stations.

*Neighborhood associations include apartment management associations.

Running since 2013! President Toshiko Hara Nishijuku Neighborhood Association

We hold regular disaster drills using the local disaster response station as a base. We do this to be sure we can smoothly run safety checks and rescue work in a disaster. We use equipment (basic tents, etc.) whenever possible (such as at regular events) so we know how to use them. Also, we regularly request city-run on-site information sessions that we invite new members and nearby associations to attend.

We highly recommend using your nearest local disaster response station!

You can apply with just a "notification of use form"

For neighborhood association members that use local disaster response stations!

At least 1 time a year Please hold a disaster drill

In order to save as many lives as possible in an emergency, it is important to know how to use the fire fighting and rescue equipment stored in the stations. If you are a neighborhood association member, please run at least 1 disaster drill every year using a local disaster response station. These drills also help to check that equipment is ready to use, so we ask for your support.

If any of the stored equipment has been damaged or lost, please call the Civil Defence Division (072-724-6750).

Local disaster response stations are located in 61 places around the city!
